

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quart of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—(Adv.)

ST. MIHEL ASSAULT FEATURES NEWS COLUMNS

As First Independent American Stroke, It Attracts Special Notice.

London, Sept. 12.—The assault on the St. Mihiel salient dominates the news columns of the newspapers today, which feature it with the biggest headlines. The opening blow in Marshal Foch's great offensive scheme claimed attention in any case, but this one has a special attraction as the first stroke of the independent American army under direct American command and as such is hailed as one of the milestones of the war.

The blow thus far has succeeded so well and brought such a large haul of prisoners that it affords an opportunity for congratulations by the press. "The day adds a glowing page of glory to American history," says the Graphic. "And it will be a proud recollection for America that her sons had a lion's share in wiping off the battle map a salient which persisted there for almost four years."

The Daily News calls attention to the "strikingly restrained" tone of Gen. Pershing's communique and says:

"This new formidable thrust adds to the enemy's perplexities and gives proof of the commanding superiority and resources of the allies, which foreshadows the future course of the war."

The Daily Mail describes the incident as "one of the great moments of the war."

"The enemy," says the Times, "has very good reason for disentangling himself without delay. He is in a sack and the strings are being drawn on one or the other of the American forces he must resort with all speed to the 'elastic defense' he has been practicing on the Marne and the Somme or run the risk of being strangled between the neck and the sack closed. The stroke is well conceived and the Americans may be trusted to deliver it with their usual vigor and determination."

PLANS MADE FOR FUNERAL OF DR. JONES

One of Country's Greatest Welfare Workers Passes to His Rich Reward.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 12.—Plans for the funeral of Dr. Lloyd Jones, patriarchal welfare worker, pastor and pacifist, of Chicago, who died last night at Tower Hill, his Wisconsin summer home, are expected to be effected today. Death followed an operation of a week ago, which left the venerable head of Lincoln Center, Chicago, in a weak condition.

Dr. Jones had a nationwide reputation as a welfare worker and as a militant pacifist, filling a unique position for more than a quarter of a century in the life of Chicago. Pacifism with him was a religion. He fought for it in the face of opposition, which he would not permit to weaken him. He was a member of the "peace ship" party which sailed for Sweden in 1915.

Born in Cardiganshire, South Wales, in 1842, he was brought to America at the age of 1 year. He served three years in the Civil war, his convictions strongly against armed warfare developing later. He first came to Chicago in 1862.

Abraham Lincoln Center, his South Side settlement house here, will remain his monument.

The American army in France now has a railway system with more miles of track and heavier equipment than the Erie railroad.

FOCH'S OFFENSIVE NOW TO UNDERGO THE SUPREME TEST

(By Frank H. Simonds.)
(Copyright, N. Y. Tribune.)

Foch's offensive is now to undergo its supreme test. In July he seized the initiative from the Germans. In August and the first week of September he exploited local successes with the result that the Germans were compelled to fall back to the positions from which they emerged to make their great attack of March 21.

This is an amazing achievement, but a wholly limited achievement. The great task remains to be accomplished—Ludendorff's main force has not been broken. Foch, the champion and the spokesman for the school of "absolute war," as he describes it, would be the first to recognize the clear limitations of his success up to the present hour.

Victory in this war, as in all wars, can come only when the enemy's armies are broken. Local successes like those that have been won in recent weeks are useful. They permit the victors to gain valuable communications and occupy important positions. They demoralize the spirit of the enemy and they raise the spirits of the armies sharing in the advance.

But all these are purely minor circumstances. We saw in 1914, all the French army defeated, driven back three and four times as far as Ludendorff's forces have retreated. We saw the Germans convinced that the military power of France was broken and the war won. So far from the truth was the German view, however, that it contributed to German retreat when Joffre took the offensive at the Marne and threw the Germans back of the Aisne.

In 1870, when the Germans had interned Bismarck's army in Metz and captured MacMahon's forces at Sedan, the issue of the war was decided. The rout of Napoleon's army at Waterloo terminated the campaign of 1815. Appomattox, followed by Johnston's surrender, ended the Civil war. But only when the masses of organized is a military decision achieved—and nothing like a decision has yet been had in this war.

We may be sure that Foch will now make every possible effort to prevent Ludendorff from stabilizing his front, even momentarily, on the old Hindenburg line. He has been preparing for the present emergency for at least a month, and we must expect the climax of all the fighting of his offensive to come in the next ten days. All his larger purposes will have been blocked and he will have suffered a strategic check if Ludendorff is able to pin down all advance on the present front.

Situation Paralleled.
The situation, then, would closely resemble the situation in Galicia and Volhynia in the last great Russian offensive of 1915. In that year Brusilov attacked five Austrian armies between the Pripiet Marshes and Rumania. His objective was Lemberg or Kovle, not territory nor cities; it was the Austrian army. In the course of the summer he made great advances, threatened Lemberg and Kovle, took 250,000 prisoners and occupied 15,000 square miles of conquered territory, but he did not smash the Austrians because Germany intervened. As a result the campaign was, in a larger sense, a failure. It did not achieve its main purpose.

Now Foch has the offensive, he has won the preliminary victories and he stands on the threshold of far greater possibilities. The Germans must accept a defensive battle under adverse conditions or continue their retreat. If they accept battle they may be beaten completely and we may have the decisive military success of the war. But if they retreat, declining battle, as Joffre retired from the Aisne in 1914, then the main battle will be merely territorial and the decisive engagement will be postponed—probably until next year.

But we shall do well to recognize that on the military side we are only at the end of the first stage of a great operation. The German has made a successful retirement from a vicious situation. His retreat has been expensive, but not more expensive than that of Joffre from the frontier to the Marne. We do not know whether he has attained the main object of his retreat, which was to regain freedom of action, but we believe that he has not judged on the circumstances of his retreat.

Hindenburg Succeeded.
If we are wrong and Ludendorff has regained freedom of action he will now endeavor by local counter-offensives made at points of his own choosing to regain the initiative and compel Foch to abandon his own plans to protect his armies from these counter-offensives. This is what Hindenburg did in Volhynia in 1915, and it proved successful. This is what Foch did at the Marne two months ago, and it was even more successful.

We are not to be confused now by reference to the map—territorial gains are relatively unimportant because the sacrifice by the Germans of the region between the Hindenburg line and the Belgian frontier has been a decisive battle is fought, but failing this we have got to have the victory, and up to the present hour Ludendorff retains the liberty of action necessary to enable him to retreat and postpone a decisive battle if he chooses.

DAYTON BYS DOES HIS BIT IN FRONT-LINE TRENCHES

Abbie Fisher Says "Cooties" Are Small Creatures That Bite Like Bulldog.

Abbie A. Fisher, a Dayton boy, who is "over there" with the 117th infantry, has written an interesting letter to a friend, in which he described his first experience in the trenches. He said his few days at the front were not as bad as he expected, although he had plenty of "cooties." He wrote that "cooties" were small creatures, with a bite like a bulldog. "I am never lonesome since the 'cootie' made his acquaintance," he said.

Fisher believes the war will end by next summer. He has been enjoying the best of health. He explained that he hoped his training would carry him through the war. "I did not know much training and now will show the Hun that there is 'one' live American over here."

Society Women Use New Wrinkle Remover

Since the discovery that a solution of ordinary salicylic acid and witch hazel has a peculiar effect upon wrinkled skin, it has been learned that many prominent society women all over the country have used this simple home treatment with great success. The formula is: Powdered salicylic acid, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. Use daily as a wash lotion.

The beneficial action of this wash is felt at once. There is an agreeable refreshing sensation and feeling of exhilaration. Flabbiness and all wrinkles are immediately affected, and the skin soon becomes firmer and more youthful looking. No one need hesitate to get the ingredients at the drug store and make the remedy herself, for there are no harmful effects whatever.—(Adv.)
